

International Biodeterioration and Biodegradation Symposium: IBBS-19

Dr. Andrea Koerdt, Organising Committee Member

IBBS-19 is coming to Berlin!

In September 2024 the "International Biodeterioration & Biodegradation Symposium" (IBBS-19) will take place in Berlin. The most recent topics around biology, materials, material protection and new energy sources will be presented and discussed. Due to societal and political pressure, especially novel and sustainable energy sources are of acute relevance and force us to act quickly and therefore novel systems and infrastructure are needed. An important, and unfortunately often underestimated aspect is the negative impact of biological processes on these novel systems. At IBBS-19, in addition to more familiar and "traditional" topics, we will also address the novel challenges created by the energy transition. What can we learn from the past, where can knowledge be transferred, what are the new requirements and challenges to be considered. Be there, get updated and help shape the new direction.
